Spanish Tech option: Listen to the traditional folk song “De Colores” about the many colors of springtime. Listen for these words in the song: las flores (flowers), el arco iris (rainbow), los colores (colors), los campos (the fields), los pajaritos (the little birds), el gallo (the rooster), la gallina (the chicken), and los pollitos (the chicks). Non-Tech option: Go on a flower hunt. What color “flores” do you find? (Can you practice our colors song with motions to say your colors in Spanish?) Anaranjado, anaranjado Verde, blanco, azul Rojo, negro Café, morado Amarillo, rosado gris	Media Center Do you remember the “Are You Ready for a Story?” song? If so, make a video of you singing it and share it on Flipgrid! Tech Option: Visit getepic.com (See note), search “plants,” choose one non-fiction (true facts about plants) and/or one fiction (a story about plants) book to listen to/read. For non-readers: Ms. Lisa recommends “Plants” by Andrea Rivera (non-fiction) and “Greenie Grows a Garden” by Harriet Ziefert (fiction). For readers: Ms. Lisa recommends “Plants are Living Things” by Bobbie Kalman (non-fiction) and “Digger and Daisy Plant a Garden” by Judy Young. Non-Tech Option: Do you remember the story of Jack and the Beanstalk? If you got to climb a beanstalk, what would you like to find, high in the sky? Write a story or draw a picture of what you’d see and share it on Flipgrid!	Note: Instructions for logging onto Epic! are located on the Media Center page of the Ellis website.
